Tormentor proved the winner and an easy one. Gold Dollar flattered his backers for half a mile, but at the end died miserably, and Chesapeake got the place.

The feature of the second race was Garrison's magnificent riding of Walcott. Any other locky would have given up all hope at the head of the stretch, but Garrison persisted, and, wearing down his opponents inch yinch, won by three parts of a lengths. Walcott was the favorite. Adelbert was second once more. The gray horse never seems able to win, but lands the place money every time. Annie F. cott ran game and true for a two-year-old and finished third.

Homer was the choice of the talent in the third race, but he could not land the money. Mary Stone made all the running, and won castly from Homer. St. James was a poor

They found that the Chinaman did not die of Asiatic cholera and that the woman is not suffering with that disease.

So Minister Peraza's Son Says the Pursuit of the South Portland.

It was reported to-day that an armed vessel, secured by Venezuelan Minister Bolet-Peraza to chase the alleged revolutionist steamer, south Portland, left this port last night bearing a very formidable armament.

Consul-General Grai Ferrero, at 18 Broadway, said that he knew nothing of the departure of a vessel for Venezuela under the direction of Minister Bolet-Peraza.

"If such a course has been adopted," he added, "I have not been informed of the fact, and it is altegether in Minister Peraxa's hands."

The Custom-House authorities did not ciear a vessel of the description of Minister Bolet-Perazia craft for Venguela yesterday nor had they up to noon too-day.

They admitted that if the Minister had secured such a vessel and equipped her as a warship he could by the Venezuelan Hag and Minister Bolet-Perazia's son dulo was seen later by an Evesying Wonto reporter at the Venezuelan Minister's home.

The young man said it was a mistake that the yacht had aiready sailed in pursuit of the South Portiand, but that she had been obtained and was all ready for sailing with the exception of placing her armament aboard.

This, he said, was a matter of small moment, and that the yacht could be got under way six hours atter receiving authority from the Venezuelan Government, which was all that his tather was waiting for.
